

Tuba Freestanding

Tuba by Antoni Lupi opens like the stem of a flower, it is surprising for its organic form and how it characterizes the space, without being too intrusive.

It develops into height from a round base to open up and accept with an enveloping gesture the flow of water. Tuba, made from Cristalplant, leads to an extremely natural and sophisticated atmosphere with elements with a strong visual impact. In the freestanding version proposes a diagonal section that gives a new aspect to the edge of the basin, while its sculptural appearance reveals a changing formal expression based on the observation points. The two-tone version, internal/external, emphasizes the character highlighting the perfect circular geometry of the summit.
